

It's only as I'm nearing 40 years of contributing to the workforce, that I have begun to understand that I have approached work with a separatist attitude. It's what we are taught as part of our culture. But this is false perception. Work is part of living. And it doesn't have to be drudgery or torment. I took that road, until I learned to see differently. I learned how to create my own, innovative workspace, and in doing so, I was no longer bound by a perception of competition and scarcity, but of open space and abundance. This took the anxiety and striving out of working. Allowing for creativity and insight to thrive. No longer dreading Mondays. And everyday feels like Friday. This is seeing work as part of living. This is allowing for an integrative flow in all aspects of my life.

Creative Expertise

Academic & Professional Timeline

■ Education ■ Employment ■ Location ■ Launch of Shadowland Creative Academy

- 2020-22 Various Udemy Classes for continuing education
- 2015 Arizona State University - BA Interdisciplinary Studies
 Anthropology & Philosophy - Honors Society: Alpha Iota Sigma
- 2014 Phoenix College - Associates in Liberal Arts - Honors Society: Phi Theta Kappa
- 2009 Christian Writers Guild - Apprenticeship in Creative Writing
- 1999 Christ for the Nations Institute - AA in Practical Theology - Ordained Minister
- 1986 Delaware County Community College - Advertising Design

<http://linkedin.com/in/dianegiunta>

